Justin Greis joins NACD Board Advisory Faculty to help boards unlock the value of AI and technology

News

April 7, 2026

Category: press releases

Tags: ai, board, nacd, technology

A strong supporter of the NACD's mission, Justin will work with boards and executive teams through NACD's Board Advisory Services® to help organizations govern AI and technology while moving at the unprecedented speed this moment demands. His appointment reflects the growing need for practical, experience-driven perspectives as business and technology strategy become inseparable.

"Many organizations have made significant investments in AI and technology, but the real challenge is turning those investments into meaningful outcomes," said Greis. "Boards play a critical role in setting direction and ensuring accountability. NACD equips directors to navigate a future where AI and technology are central to every strategic decision."

About NACD Board Advisory Services®

NACD's Board Advisory faculty comprises more than 40 sitting directors and C-suite executives who are leading experts in their fields. They offer actionable guidance through education, facilitation, assessment, coaching, and analysis across a range of crucial topics that support the advancement of board practices and ultimately lead to better business outcomes.

For more information about NACD Board Advisory Services®, visit: https://www.nacdonline.org/nacd-board-advisory-services/

About Justin Greis

Justin Greis is the Founder and CEO of acceligence, a management consulting firm focused on technology, cybersecurity, risk, and strategy. Justin helps executives and boards of the world's leading organizations optimize their technology investments and transform risk into competitive advantage.

For more information about Justin, visit: https://acceligence.com/talent/profiles/justin-greis/

Media contact

media@acceligence.com